

Students from Indonesia

2015 Enrollment: Bachelors (123), Masters (7), Ph.D. (13)

Current Graduate Programs Represented: Economics, Environmental Science, Business/Finance, Higher Education, Computer Science/ Informatics, Language Education, Music, Public Affairs, Public Health, Religious Studies, Instructional Systems Technology

What Indonesian Graduate Students Say About Indiana University Bloomington:

“It was easy and convenient to obtain information from the school's website about faculty I wanted to work with.”

“My experience studying in the program has certainly enriched my academic skills and capacity; as an open-minded person, I am ready to discover new knowledge about teaching and learning.”

“The professors are well-known experts in the fields of education and are familiar with international collaboration.”

“IUB has a reputable program in religious studies, especially Islamic studies, and the resources are rich to do research in Islamic intellectual history.”

“Indiana University professors are highly qualified individuals who will be more than happy to assist students learn both inside and outside classroom settings.”

“The librarians are happy to assist with finding reading materials, even if these reading materials may not be available on campus.”

“The professors are excellent role models in how they conduct research, handle classes, and respect and support students' research interests.”

What Indonesian Graduate Students Say About Life in Bloomington:

“People on and off campus respect the diverse cultures that international students bring with them to IU.”

“The cost of living is affordable; public transportation is good; and used cars are easy to find and affordable.”

“I am a Muslim and I never have any problem practicing my religious obligations on and off campus.”

“It is easy to get halal foods and the Islamic center is within walking distance from campus.”

“The City of Bloomington is the best city to live – it is small but everything is well organized. Not too hot during summer, not too cold during winter.”

“The cost of living in Bloomington is not too high—you can normally find a place to live that suits your budget.”

“The Bloomington transit (city bus) and the IU campus shuttle are pretty reliable and cover large enough areas that you could go around Bloomington without needing a car.”

Additional Information and Contacts for Prospective Students from Indonesia:

PERMIAS Bloomington

indo@indiana.edu

<http://permiasbloomington.weebly.com/>

IU Alumni Indonesian Chapter

<http://alumni.indiana.edu/chapters/indonesia>

If you would like to contact a current Indonesian student at IUB with questions, please feel free to email any of the following people:

Mr. Faishal Zakaria, fzakaria@indiana.edu

Doctoral student, Literacy, Culture, and Language Education (LCLE) , School of Education.

Mr. Mateus Yumarnamto, myumarna@indiana.edu

Doctoral student, Language Education, School of Education

Mr. Arif Riyadi, ariyadi@indiana.edu

Masters student, MBA Program, Kelley School of Business

Full List of Graduate Programs at IUB: <http://graduate.indiana.edu/admissions/programs.shtml>

Admissions contact for applicants who are also applying for LPDP sponsorship:

Mr. Daniel Whitmer, Associate Director, Sponsored Student Services

Office of International Services

djwhitme@iu.edu

INDIANA UNIVERSITY

<http://ois.iu.edu>

newtoiu@iu.edu